DETAILED ACTION

Status of the Claims

1. A preliminary amendment filed on February 1, 2005 canceled claims 1-44 and added new claims 45-64.

Election/Restrictions

2. Restriction is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 and 372.

This application contains the following inventions or groups of inventions which are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

In accordance with 37 CFR 1.499, applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single invention to which the claims must be restricted.

Group I, claim(s) 45-60, drawn to a method for isolating a polynucleotide.

Group II, claim(s) 61 and 63, drawn to a polynucleotide and/or host cell.

Group III, claim(s) 62, drawn to a polypeptide.

Group IV, claim(s) 64, drawn to a method for producing a polypeptide.

3. The inventions listed as Groups I-IV do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, they lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons:

The common technical feature is a polynucleotide which encodes a polypeptide, can be inserted into a vector and utilized to transfect a host cell, and can be utilized in various methods. The common technical feature of a polynucleotide which encodes a polypeptide, can be inserted into a vector and utilized to transfect a host cell, and can be utilized in various methods is known in the art.

Art Unit: 1639

Specifically, Meyers et al., U.S. Patent 7,070,947, teach various polynucleotides which encodes various polypeptides, can be inserted into various vectors, utilized to transfect host cells including E. coli and yeast, utilized in methods of producing polypeptides and methods of isolating the polynucleotide wherein secretion signals and rolling circle amplification are employed (please refer to the entire specification; for example, columns 2, 42-45, 57-58, 106, 112-113). Therefore, a polynucleotide which encodes a polypeptide, can be inserted into a vector and utilized to transfect a host cell, and can be utilized in various methods is known in the art.

4. This application contains claims directed to more than one species of the generic invention. These species are deemed to lack unity of invention because they are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

The species are as follows:

For Group I:

- a. a single, specific species of organism/microorganism (please refer to claims 47-51)
- b. a single, specific species of DNA fragment (e.g. a DNA fragment with a transposon; please refer to claims 54-55)

5. Applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single species to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. The reply must also identify the claims readable on the elected species, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered non-responsive unless accompanied by an election.

6. Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which are written in dependent form or otherwise include all the limitations of an allowed generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

7. The claims are deemed to correspond to the species listed above in the following manner:
For Group I: claims 47-51 and 54-55.

The following claim(s) are generic: 45.

8. The species listed above do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, the species lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons: the species are structurally and/or functionally different.

9. Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species or invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected invention.

Art Unit: 1639

10. The election of an invention or species may be made with or without traverse. To reserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse.

11. Should applicant traverse on the ground that the inventions or species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the inventions or species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C.103(a) of the other invention.
